Hilltop Construction is a family run business and they became part of our family as they worked to give us a beautiful new addition. Their goal is to produce a product that pleases the homeowner and also satisfies the high standards set by their company. If something isn't to their liking, it is changed, even if it costs the company more money. When we discovered this, we knew we had chosen the right construction company. They care about people and they care about their reputation. They stand behind their work. As a company, we have nothing but praise, but equally important is the fact that they are honest, kind people and we feel so fortunate to have chosen them to give us the home of our dreams.
